

EVALUATE THE SOURCE

Make sure the sources you use are credible, current, and relevant to your topic. Answer these questions for each source. A majority of your answers should be “yes” in order for the source to prove to be credible, current, and relevant:

SOURCE:	YE S	N O
1. Does this source present both sides of the issue?
2. Does this source list an author and name its sources?
3. Does this source use data and facts to support an opinion or stance?
4. Does this source have information you could use for your own argument?
5. Is this source current for your topic?

SOURCE:	YE S	N O
1. Does this source present both sides of the issue?
2. Does this source list an author and name its sources?
3. Does this source use data and facts to support an opinion or stance?
4. Does this source have information you could use for your own argument?
5. Is this source current for your topic?

SOURCE:	YE S	N O
1. Does this source present both sides of the issue?
2. Does this source list an author and name its sources?
3. Does this source use data and facts to support an opinion or stance?
4. Does this source have information you could use for your own argument?
5. Is this source current for your topic?

SOURCE:	YE S	N O
1. Does this source present both sides of the issue?
2. Does this source list an author and name its sources?
3. Does this source use data and facts to support an opinion or stance?
4. Does this source have information you could use for your own argument?
5. Is this source current for your topic?

SOURCE:	YE S	N O
1. Does this source present both sides of the issue?
2. Does this source list an author and name its sources?
3. Does this source use data and facts to support an opinion or stance?
4. Does this source have information you could use for your own argument?
5. Is this source current for your topic?		